5 Action Movies That You Should See

Action movies are Hollywood's top grosser in the box office so it seems easy to come up with a list of the best of them. Unfortunately, this is not the case. Any action movie sucker knows that creating a compilation of the best action movies to have ever hit the screen is an epic task. This is simply because each of these great action movies are the best in their own right. In addition, each person has or her own taste when it comes to selecting the best of the best action movies there is. No matter how many times you watch a favorite movie, there will always be something new to get from it as if it was the first time you watch it. The list below is a personal compilation of the author, and as such, should never constitute an aesthetic standard when it comes to action films selection.

Saving Private Ryan

This soldier's-eye view of the Second World War storming of Normandy during D-Day is simply devastating. This film is the father of all WWII films and is considered a good measure for filmmaking.

such as muted colors, slight speeding up of images, hand-held cameras, and many others, all contributed to the uniqueness of the film. Amazing movie creation.

Terminator 2

Judgment Day--Released in 1991, this sequel of the original Terminator is considered the best of the series even after the release of Terminator 3. Arnold Schwarzenegger starred as an android sent from the future to protect a young boy who will lead the future revolutionary movement against the machines that will take control of the world. This is also, by far, Schwarzenegger's best action movie.

Gladiator

If you have a flair for history and historical settings, Gladiator will never fail to deliver the excitement and adventure you are looking for. Russell Crowe perfectly portrayed the hardy qualities of Roman General Maximus Decimus Meridius even in the face of personal adversity and extreme hardships. This movie also offers an excellent accurate display of the tale of gladiators in the once blood-thirsty Roman Empire.

Die Hard

Now a Christmas cult favorite, Die Hard starring Bruce Willis was a work of action art. Known for its mix of brutality and humor as well as a brilliantly acted protagonist and antagonist, Die Hard has everything an action film should be. An off duty police officer is left to save his estranged wife when the high rise building hosting a company party they are attending is viciously attacked by terrorists. You can imagine what happens next.

The Matrix

What if all of life was an illusion, a dream fed into your conscious mind by machines that were using your body as batteries? This is the concept explored in The Matrix by the Wachowski brothers. This film raises more questions than it answers and has led to many philosophical conversations regarding the essence of objective reality.

Any Other Movie Recommendation?

Absolutely! We recommend Surge of Power: Revenge of the Sequel. It's the latest movie of 2017. If you're a fan of Hulk, The Avengers and Fantastic Four than you'll love this movie. Infact, it's a "A must-see for fans of the TV Avengers, the Fantastic Four and the Hulk".
